

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

In issuing to the world the fifth volume of the Index to Periodicals, I acknowledge with gratitude the kind reception which the previous volumes have received, and venture to hope that this issue may not be less fortunate than its predecessors.

This Index to Periodicals is an Annual Index which differs completely from any index of periodicals published elsewhere, or even in my own office. The Monthly Index, which is issued as nearly as possible on the 3rd or 4th of each month, is quite a distinct work, built up on entirely different lines. So far from the Annual Index being a compilation from, or condensation of, the twelve Monthly Indexes, it is altogether a separate and independent publication. The Monthly is merely a handy fingerpost to the leading contents of the periodicals of the month, both English and Foreign. All that rapidity of production makes possible in the penny supplement of the Review of Reviews is a rough-and-ready classification, first as to periodicals, then as to main subjects. The Annual Index is drawn up with a different object. Though confined within exclusively English limits, it is designed to be a permanent guide for the use of the student, the journalist, the statesman and others, to the more important articles in the periodical literature of each year.

There is, of course, no pretence at the quasi-scientific completeness which would be secured if the contents of every magazine were included. The Index is based upon the principle of selection and rejection, consequently it is not a mere auctioneer's catalogue of the miscellaneous omnium gatherum of valuables and rubbish found under the capacious roof-tree of magazinedom. Were such a system adopted, the reader would indeed not be able to see the wood, I do not say for the trees, but for the brushwood which grows at their base. No doubt even with this principle of selection rigorously applied, many articles must be indexed which are hardly worth a permanent memorial in this record of such an important department of the literary activity of English-speaking man. There are plenty of articles which are merely as ground bottle-glass, and some as ground bottle-glass reground, so that it is pure waste of time to read them or to index them. But it is better to index a little rubbish than to ignore what might be a useful article.

The object of Miss Hetherington and her staff in compiling the Annual Index has been to facilitate the task of the reader who is interested in any particular subject by presenting him with an approach to a bibliography—that is so far as the periodical literature of the year is concerned—on the topic in question. This forms the real and permanent utility of this Index. All over the world men and women whose attention has been roused by some word or deed of their fellows to some particular phase of our social, religious, or political development, are constantly casting about for the latest information on the subject. They ransack their libraries only to find in most cases nothing up to date. Their histories break off five, ten, twenty, or fifty years ago. The discussion of the sociological problems of the day naturally finds no place in the volumes, most of which were written in the first half of the century. Even in public libraries the same difficulty is felt to a greater or less extent. A provincial editor who is anxious to construct at short notice an article which will enlighten his readers as to the present condition of the internal politics of Timbuctoo, the extent to which travellers have penetrated the interior of New Guinea, the latest views of scholars upon the authenticity of Holy Writ, or the contemporary opinions of diplomatists and statesmen upon the changes wrought in the world by the Japanese conquest of China, will look in vain for what he wants in bound books. He can only get what he requires in the abysmal depths of the journalistic rubbish-heap or the wide wilderness of periodical literature.

With regard to the indexing of newspapers, that task is at present the monopoly of Mr. Palmer, who confines himself sedulously to the Times. Other newspapers, some of which yield enormous incomes to their proprietors, are not ashamed to appear unindexed year after year, only because indexing does not pay. That, in a sense, is true. Neither does the building of St. Paul's Cathedral pay, or the foundation of a new religion. Most of the best things in the world are produced at a dead loss—a loss often by no means confined to pence alone. But leaving the indexing of newspapers to journalists at whose door it properly lies, I stick to the indexing of magazines and reviews. And as I personally have no part in the arduous and responsible work of compiling the Annual Index to Periodicals which it is my privilege to publish, I may be permitted to say how much I appreciate the invaluable assistance which its densely packed columns are capable of affording the student of the marvellously multifarious life of our present day.

Mr. John Morley said on one occasion that whenever he had to make a speech without knowing exactly what he ought to say, he never failed to find inspiration in turning over the leaves of a dictionary. Following up the same idea, no editor at a loss for straw with which to make up his daily tale of journalistic bricks could fail to find helpful hints and suggestive guidance if he were to turn over the pages of the Annual Index. For it is no mere alphabetical arrangement of titles or of catchwords in titles; it is a series of carefully classified bibliographical monographs on all the more important subjects of human interest that have cropped up in the course of the twelvemonth. It is no wonder that it has fit audience found though few, and that there are few public libraries of importance in the English-speaking world where this Index has not come to be regarded as indispensable.

This year, in order to gain more space for the growing Index proper, the elaborate guide to the periodical literature of the world which appeared in the previous volumes has been omitted. These volumes are still on sale, and those who desire to have the guide can obtain it in Volume IV. of the Index. At the end of the present volume, however, will be found a complete table of all the periodicals indexed, with such necessary particulars as will enable any reader to communicate with the editor or publisher. In the Introduction the more important changes that have taken place in the world of magazines and reviews since our last issue are described.

Carrying out my original conception, the Index is still strictly confined to the articles appearing in monthly and quarterly publications. But this year, in accordance with many requests, two geological and one or two other scientific periodicals which ought not in strictness to come within the scope of an Index to general periodical literature have been added. The indexing of the Proceedings of Societies, learned and otherwise, is a branch of the work which might possibly be undertaken with advantage, but as it lies apart, it has not yet been undertaken as a part of the Annual Index.

A good many Authors have been indexed, that is to say, a good many writers will find their articles tabulated under their names. To give a complete author-index would swamp too much of the space at disposal. The dates of deceased persons, when readily obtainable, have been added to the entries concerning them. For the rest there are innumerable cross-references, so that the consulter need have no difficulty in discovering the heading under which he will find the particular item he is seeking, should he only happen to remember the title and be in doubt with regard to the subject-heading. The only other point which remains to be referred to is the typographical improvement, whereby the subject-headings are now rendered more conspicuous by being printed in a slightly heavier type.

With these prefatory observations, I leave the Index for 1894 to speak for itself.

W. T. STEAD.

Midsummer, 1895.

INTRODUCTION.

No very conspicuous novelty calls for special mention in the world of periodicals since the publication of our last issue. The drift of magazinedom still leads steadily in one direction. There is a constantly increasing number of the miscellanies which are chiefly composites of fiction and of pictures. This tendency has even invaded the domain of the solid and severe quarterly, and we have to chronicle the audacious, if not salacious, Yellow Book as the first of a new species of quarterly publication. In literature, and, perhaps, still more in "art," the Yellow Book occupies, indeed, a distinct place. Of a very different nature, with the exception of some of its illustrations, is another quarterly which has been started in 1895. This is the Evergreen, a quaint and curious publication, full of the noblest aspirations for the regeneration of the race. The Yellow Book is the organ of decadence, the Evergreen of renaissance. Both are published at 5s.

Magazines, like human beings, may have the more important episodes in their transient existence noticed under the familiar heading of "Births, Marriages, and Deaths." To all magazines and periodicals it is appointed once to be born, and once to die, and they resemble the human race in often escaping the third great episode, for marriages are somewhat rare. There is this other difference, that magazines marry usually from weakness rather than from strength.

There are only two marriages of magazines to be reported since our last issue. The Reliquary has been amalgamated with the Illustrated Archæologist, while Our Day, of Boston, has wedded the Altruistic Review, of Chicago. In both cases the wedded couples have followed the example of Olive Schreiner and the daughters of General Booth, in that in marriage they keep their own names and take their husbands' names as well as their own.

The births of 1894 include three quarterlies and four monthlies. The quarterlies are the Yellow Book, which made its appearance in April, the Journal of the Board of Agriculture (September), which is published at sixpence; and the New Science Review, published in New York at 50 cents. The monthlies are: Science Progress (March); Science Gossip, which began a new series in March; and the Senate, the first number of which appeared in May, 1894. It is published by the Roxburghe Press, and the price is sixpence. The Quest, printed at the Press of the Birmingham Guild of Handicraft, was started in November, and is to appear three times a year. The price is half-a-crown a number, and the style resembles that of the Century Guild Hobby Horse.

In 1895 the new quarterly is the Evergreen, published at Edinburgh, and edited by Professor Geddes, who is assisted by a band of young writers. The Twentieth Century, a new half-crown review, edited by Mr. William Graham, has made its appearance after considerable delay. It is a monthly on the lines of the Nineteenth Century, with signed articles and other features. It is published by Remington & Co., 15, King Street, Covent Garden.

Two magazines of importance have been issued in conjunction with well-established periodicals. One, the Strand Musical Magazine, has achieved widespread popularity; the other, also a sixpenny, is Chapman's Magazine of Fiction, issued by Chapman and Hall, and edited by Mr. Oswald Crawfurd. Other new magazines of 1895 which have come under my notice are the Englishwoman, a miscellany edited by Miss Ella Hepworth-Dixon; and Scots Lore.

In addition to the births, marriages, and deaths in the preceding twelve months, there are numerous changes to be reported, some of which are almost equivalent to the publication of new magazines. Notably, for instance, was the transformation in the Newbery House Magazine, which reappeared as the Minster, a copiously illustrated monthly. A still more marvellous transformation was wrought when Sylvia's Journal was discontinued in order to reappear in a glorified shape as the Windsor Magazine, one of the innumerable illustrated sixpenny magazines of which the Strand may be regarded as the original progenitor.

Another change which took place in magazines, not in London, but in Dublin, was the substitution of the New Ireland Review for the Lyceum. The Review of the Churches, Dr. Lunn's well-known monthly, is now published quarterly; on the other hand, the Investors' Review, which is edited by Mr. A. J. Wilson, the rhadamanthine critic and financial expert of the Standard, ceasing to be a quarterly, has appeared monthly since January, 1894. The Antiquary reduced its price from a shilling to sixpence in January, 1895, while to keep the balance even, the Argosy enlarged itself, and raised its price to a shilling.

The Bookman, Dr. Robertson Nicoll's paper, has now an American edition; but Mr. McClure has not yet re-opened his London offices, and his magazine is at present confined to America. The London Home Magazine, which started at threepence, is now published at a penny; while the Pall Mall Magazine, which, in many respects, is the best of all our illustrated miscellanies, has announced that it will raise its price from 1s. to 1s. 6d. in August. The American Journal of Politics has adopted the title of the American Magazine of Civics, the better to indicate its scope.

When we turn to the obituary, it is not very long. Cassell's Cabinet Portrait Gallery has been completed and replaced by the Universal Portrait Gallery. The Andover Review has vanished; it was too solid for anything. The Californian Illustrated Magazine, an admirable magazine, published at San Francisco, has given up the ghost. The other deaths are the Modern Review, of which only two numbers for 1894 have been received; Shakespeariana (American); and the Bookworm. All these perished in 1894. In 1895, the only item for obituary so far is Merry England, which expired in March.

Outside England and America there is not much to report in the shape of new publications. The Colonial world seems to be well supplied with periodicals from London. In India, in May, 1895, there appeared the first number of the Madras Review.

In Music, we have to note the disappearance of the American Music Review and the Keyboard. The Strand Musical Magazine, which fills up the void, is before all things a budget of music, but not of the same classical order as that given by the Magazine of Music in its supplement. This latter magazine has raised its price to sixpence nett, but it is a capital sixpennyworth. The Art Journal and the Magazine of Art continue as before. Both are excellent. Mr. Gleeson White has been succeeded by Mr. Charles Holme as editor of the Studio, and the American Quarterly Illustrator became the Monthly Illustrator in February, 1895.

In the Review of Reviews there is not much change to be reported, except that the Index section is now published separately at 1d. as early in the month as possible. The Australasian edition is now printed altogether at the Antipodes. The most important imitation of the Review of Reviews that has appeared is the French Revue Catholique des Revues, the first number of which came out in January, 1895. The other imitations, the Review of the Churches, the Religious Review of Reviews, the Revue des Revues of Paris, the Italian Minerva, and the Scandinavian Kringsjaa, continue to exist.

There have been numerous changes in the personnel of the editors of our periodicals. The most important was that by which Mr. Frank Harris was replaced in the Fortnightly Review by Mr. W. L. Courtney; but there have been two other changes only second to this. The first of these was the assumption of the editorship of the National Review by Mr. L. J. Maxse; second, the appointment of Mr. W. E. Henley to be editor of the New Review. Two notable editors have died. Dr. Chapman, who was, in many ways, the Nestor of review editors, edited the Westminster Review until his death in November. Mr. George Bentley, who, during the later years of a long life, had been the editor of Temple Bar, died in June, 1895. Mr. Ranyard, editor of Knowledge, died last November, and was succeeded by Mr. E. Walter Maunder. Canon Fleming has resigned the editorship of the Religious Review of Reviews with the June, 1895, number. The Idler announces a great departure for August. A new series is to be inaugurated, and the size of the magazine is to be increased to the size of Harper. The price will still be sixpence, and the editorship will be undertaken by Mr. Jerome K. Jerome.

There is nothing very special to note in the German Magazines, but some very solid reading may be got out of some of them. Vom Fels zum Meer now appears fortnightly, and for a time might be regarded as the magazine of colour-printing. The new French magazines include the Magazine International, started in December, 1894, as the quarterly organ of the International Artistic Society. It gives critical notices of French works and French translations of the works of other countries. The Quinzaine, which was started in November, appears twice a month. In 1895 we have the Monde Moderne, the Revue Catholique des Revues des Deux Mondes (twice a month), and the Argos, all of which were started in January; and the Devenir Social, which came out in April, and forms an interesting addition to the already formidable number of French economic reviews. The Monde Moderne marks a new departure in French periodicals. It is profusely illustrated, and each number contains 160 pages of interesting articles on general topics, with one or two short stories. The publisher is A. Quantin, 5, rue Saint Benoît, Paris. The Argos is naval and military.

There are many problems connected with the world of periodical literature which cannot be discussed in this Introduction. I will, however, allow myself to mention two. First, the attempt that has been made by magazines of secondary order, notably the Asiatic Quarterly, the Magazine of Art, the Economic Journal, the Educational Review (London), the Library, the Magazine of Music, the New Quarterly Musical Review, and Natural Science, to publish their wares at nett prices. But the discount system is too deeply entrenched to be interfered with, except by combined effort, for which magazines are not ready. The second point is the attempt to introduce colour-printing into magazines more generally than at present. The most notable effort in this direction has been made in the Pall Mall Magazine, but as it has been immediately followed by notification of rise in price, it is probable that most people would prefer to have their illustrations uncoloured to having to pay an extra sixpence for a bit of paint.

W.T.S.

SOME OPINIONS OF VOLUME IV.

The Times says:—"The Annual Index is really what it professes to be, a means of ready reference to all the important matter in the current periodical literature of the world."

The Daily News says:—"Each year's Index gives us access to a whole library in almost every department of human knowledge and of human inquiry and interest."

The Daily Chronicle says:—"No student of contemporary affairs can afford to be without this invaluable and painstaking work."

The Westminster Gazette says:—"The work has already achieved a reputation both in this country and America. Many of the leading librarians have spoken in the highest terms of its utility, and men of letters like Mr. Frederic Harrison have described it as a model of what an index should be. The book is practically given away for a paltry crown. It is worth many crowns to all interested in current periodical literature, and should have a world-wide circulation."

The Birmingham Daily Post says:—"The three earlier issues of this work, for 1890, 1891, and 1892, are too highly prized to need any special praise to this volume, but it is so exceptional in its quantity and quality that it deserves still more praise. It has many details which render it far more useful than heretofore. It has 221 closely-printed double-column pages, literally crowded with masses of facts and figures. As an index of periodicals it is unrivalled and invaluable."

The Methodist Times says:—"No library can possibly afford to be without this annual volume—the most useful reference book issued from the Press; no journalist can pretend he has any library unless he boasts the possession of this index; to the politician it is absolutely indispensable. It is absurdly cheap. Every literary man or woman who purchases it, purchases the means of saving tens of pounds' worth of time."

Public Opinion says:—"The book is an essential one for all persons engaged in the higher journalistic work."

The Sheffield Independent says:—"This quarto volume is a monument of patient and methodical work. No public library should be without it, and no editor's library. Every year will add to its value."

The English Historical Review says:—"It is the subject classification which gives the book its chief value; for the compiler has gone behind the often vague titles of articles and indicated briefly their real purport. The Index, which is certainly indispensable to librarians, will also be found serviceable by historical scholars and antiquaries."

The Magazine of Art says:—"The Index to the Periodical Literature of the World is in all respects the most complete and admirable work of its kind that has ever been published. The making of such an index calls not only for quick intelligence, judgment, and clearness of mind, but for a wide knowledge of the field of learning and sympathy for the needs of the public. These qualifications Miss HETHERINGTON possesses in the highest degree, and she has been well supported by the enterprise of Mr. W. T. Stead. With the exception of a detail in the arrangement of type, it is impossible to suggest an improvement in this indispensable work."

The Library says:—"This work is now considered indispensable to any library, public or private . . . Those libraries which cannot afford to purchase the volumes of Poole's Index require it, and those already possessing Poole must have it to keep them up to date."

Natural Science says:—"The price of the book is absurdly low in comparison to its value The work is worthy of the highest praise."

The London Quarterly says:—The Index supplies a welcome clue to the stores of periodical literature. It shows at a glance the articles published on every subject, so that a busy writer will be saved many a weary hour of fruitless searching for papers bearing on any given question."

Mr. A. SILVA WHITE writes:—"I have been using the Index to Periodicals for 1893 with much profit and satisfaction, and I am glad to bear testimony to the skill and judgment with which it has been compiled."

Mr. M. H. SPIELMANN writes:—"I have looked carefully through the Annual Index, and, so far as the Art Section is concerned, I can testify to the thoroughness and skill with which it has been carried out; indeed, I never saw a professedly 'lay' compilation handle a special subject with so much thoroughness and completeness."

Explanation.

The periodicals (quarterlies and monthlies) are indexed from January to December, 1894, irrespective of volumes. As yet no weeklies are included in the scheme.

In addition to the abbreviations of the titles of magazines, note that the number of the volume, the month, and the page of the magazine in which each article will be found are given, while the figures in parentheses refer to the volume, month, and page of the Review of Reviews (London edition) where the article is summarized or otherwise noticed. In case of a series of articles on one subject in one magazine, the name of the magazine is not repeated with each reference, only the month and the page, and the number of the volume where necessary.

Thus Cos, XVI. Mar, 515 (IX. Apr, 365) would read Cosmopolitan, Vol. XVI., March, page 515, with a notice in the Review of Reviews (London edition), Vol. IX., April, page 365. Similarly, U S M, CXXXI. Nov, 155 (X. Nov, 476), Dec, 243, would mean United Service Magazine, Vol. CXXXI., November, page 155, with a notice in the Review of Reviews (London edition), Vol. X., November, page 476; United Service Magazine again, same Volume, December, page 243, not noticed in the Review of Reviews.

(Map) means that the article is accompanied by a map, and (ill.) that it is illustrated.

Articles are classified and arranged under sub-headings as much as possible, and authors' names, when available, are given. In addition, many authors will find their articles tabulated under their names; unfortunately, owing to the exigencies of space, this has not been possible in every instance. Where the title of an article affords no clue to the subject matter, the title is given in parentheses. Occasionally an article appears simultaneously in an English and American review, in such case "same article" is stated. Poems are indexed under the authors' names; the same holds good with novelists and most other writers whose books are reviewed in the periodicals.

Critical and biographical notices of artists are given under the names of the artists, of musicians under the musicians' names, etc. A list of artists noticed will be found under the heading "Art"; musicians and composers under "Music"; dramatists, playwrights, and actors, under "Theatres and the Drama"; novelists under "Fiction," etc., etc. Dates of births and deaths where readily obtainable have been inserted with the names of persons now dead; but with kings, emperors, etc., the dates of their reigns have been preferred. Serials and short stories are not indexed, but the chief poems are given.

READING FOR THE MILLION

Issued from the "REVIEW OF REVIEWS" Office, LONDON.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS,

Published at Sixpence on the 15th of every Month, is

The Most Widely Circulated Review in the World.

It is a compendium of the periodical literature of the day.

It enables the busy man to see at a glance the gist of all the more important articles in all the reviews.

It enables the poor man who can command sixpence to read all that the best equipped scholar can remember of the literature of the month.

No one who regularly reads the REVIEW OF REVIEWS can be an ignorant man. Its pages are an encyclopædia of information constantly issued and brought up to date.

It places the periodical literature of every land under contribution. It is no mere paste and scissors patchwork, no mere "boiled magazine." It is a critical re-statement in condensed form of the current thought embodied in all the magazines and reviews.

For the traveller or resident abroad it is indispensable. No other publication can keep him so pleasantly in touch with the movement of the world and the progress of affairs at home and abroad.

Besides its primary function of acting as the universal circulating medium for the best thoughts of the month, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS has several special original features of its own.

The Monthly Chronique describes the progress of the world, a vivid and effectively illustrated history of contemporary events written by the editor on the last day of every month.

The Character Sketch is a sympathetic biographical analysis of the life and character of some notable personage of the day. These sketches are written from personal knowledge, and are invariably intended to represent their subject as he seems to himself in his best moments rather than as he seems to his enemies at his worst.

The Book of the Month essays to describe the gist of the most noteworthy book published in the current month. This is often varied by special articles dealing with one or other important phase of national or social life.

Another department is devoted to the Chronicles of the National Social Union, describing the progress made in the attempt to secure the union of all who love in the service of all who suffer.

Every month there is published a selection from the Caricatures of the Month, which forms a satirical pictorial history of our times.

The REVIEW OF REVIEWS will be supplied by all newsagents at 6d. per month, or will be forwarded by post to any part of the world for 8s. 6d. per annum from the office, Mowbray House, Temple, London, W.C.

The REVIEW OF REVIEWS is issued in half-yearly volumes, uniformly bound in green and gold, at 5s. per vol. Volumes I. and II. are practically out of print, but a very few copies remain and are being sold at 10s. each. All the other volumes from Vol. III. to Vol. XI. are in stock, and can be supplied through any bookseller or newsagent.

BORDERLAND.

This is a quarterly review devoted to the careful study and scientific examination of the curious and suggestive phenomena of the borderland between science and superstition. It deals in an eclectic and sympathetic spirit of dispassionate inquiry with all phases of the so-called occult. It is a popular guide to the study of the mysterious problems usually relegated to the Psychical Research Society. The chief interest of its conductors is to establish on an experimental basis the truth of the persistence of the individual after death, but its catholic pages cover an immense range, from astrology to palmistry, from hypnotism to theosophy. The following is a list of some of the more important articles published in the pages of Borderland:—

1. Life after Death: Letters from the Other Side.
2. My Experience in Automatic Writing, by W. T. Stead.
3. Crystal Gazing, by Miss X.
4. Clairvoyance.
5. Hypnotism and the New Witchcraft.
6. Tests in Palmistry: Mark Twain's Hands.
7. The Story of Jeanne d'Arc.
8. The Mystery of Madame Blavatsky.
9. Robert Louis Stevenson, the Man of Dreams.
10. Mr. Stainton Moses, M.A., Oxon., by Miss X.
11. The Strange Story of Molly Fancher and her Five Souls.
12. The Exposures in Spiritualism and Theosophy.

Borderland is published on the 15th of January, April, July, and October at One Shilling and Sixpence, or post free for Seven Shillings per annum.

THE MASTERPIECE LIBRARY.—THE PENNY POETS.

This series of English Classics (commencing on May 30) supplies a masterpiece of English literature every week for One Penny.

There has been nothing like it attempted hitherto for cheapness and excellence, both of matter and production.

Each weekly number contains 64 pages bound in an attractive cover, is complete in itself, and includes the cream of the poetry of a leading poet. The following are the first four numbers:—

1. May 30—Macaulay's Lays of Ancient Rome.
2. June 13—Scott's Marmion.
3. ,, 20—Byron's Childe Harold's Pilgrimage.
4. ,, 27—Lowell's Selected Poems.

One Penny each every Thursday.

OUR POETS' CORNER.

This unique portrait gallery of the poets of Britain and America is being published in Shilling monthly parts.

The first part, issued July 1st, contains reproductions of the best portraits extant of—

1. Lord Macaulay.
2. Sir Walter Scott.
3. Lord Byron.
4. James Russell Lowell.

With each monthly part is given away a volume strongly bound in cloth, with 240 clearly printed pages containing the masterpieces of the poets whose portraits are published at the same time.

At the end of the year the subscriber will therefore possess not only 48 portraits of the leading poets, but 12 neatly bound volumes containing the masterpieces of the mastersingers of our race.

The portraits and the volumes may be sent post free for 16s. for 12 months to any address.

WANTED: A SHERLOCK HOLMES!

A Chance for the Amateur Detective.

A True Story of a Miscarriage of Justice.

By W. T. STEAD. Paper Covers. Price 6d.

This is a story of a London doctor who, being unjustly accused of forgery, has been sentenced to penal servitude for nine years, three of which have already been served. Since his conviction, the person who really did the forgeries has confessed, but owing to her inability to produce her accomplice, this unfortunate victim of circumstantial evidence and mistaken identity is still suffering penal servitude in Portland prison. Although it is an authentic history, based on sworn evidence, never deviating for a moment into fiction, it is as fascinating as any detective story of romance, and it has besides the practical object of suggesting to readers who may have the capacity or the knowledge, a chance of unearthing the real criminal, and liberating an innocent man.

THE YELLOW MAN WITH THE WHITE MONEY.

A Sequel to the Chino-Japanese War.

By W. T. STEAD. A Topical Story for the Times. Price 1*s.*

For three years past the REVIEW OF REVIEWS Annual has dealt with the prominent subject of the year. Last year the annual story was devoted to a description of the impoverishment of the landed classes owing to the fall in prices, and suggested the possibility of our territorial aristocracy being supplanted by the Yellow Man from the East, whose energies and undeveloped resources it was predicted would be unloosed by the war between China and Japan. The conclusion of the Treaty of Peace, which gives to Japanese science and enterprise a free hand in developing the enormous resources of China, has compelled even the most indifferent to admit the possibility of such a consummation. Those who wish to understand the mysteries of bi-metallism, and how it is the Yellow Man with the White Money can compete at an advantage with the White Man with the Yellow Money, should read Our Splendid Paupers, which embodies the gist of many blue books in the chapters of a copiously illustrated romance.

IF CHRIST CAME TO CHICAGO.

By W. T. STEAD. Price 2*s.* 6*d. Cloth;* 1*s. Paper.*

This book, of which nearly 150,000 copies have been sold in twelve months, is the most authentic photograph of the actual conditions of political and municipal life in the greatest American city that has ever been published. Mr. Stead thinks it contains more of what he regards as the essential gospel for our time than any other book he has written.

CHICAGO TO-DAY;

Or, The Labour War of the United States.

By W. T. STEAD. 1*s.*; Paper Covers; Copiously Illustrated.

This book may be regarded as in some sense a sequel to If Christ Came to Chicago, but it covers a much wider range. Dealing with the Labour War which culminated in the great railway strike of Chicago last year, it describes the Petition in Boots, or the march of the various Labour Armies across Washington. It also gives Mr. Stead's first impressions of the United States of America. This volume, which has already been translated into German and published at Stuttgart, is the latest and most vivid picture of the seething industrial situation in America that has been published.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

By W. T. STEAD. Price 6*d.*

This little volume contains within a small compass what may be regarded as the popular brief in the case, The Democracy versus the House of Lords. It is a narrative of how the House of Lords has dealt with the various measures of political, social, and religious reform of the last half-century. It has been cordially commended by Mr. Gladstone.

THE STORY THAT TRANSFORMED THE WORLD;

Or, The Passion Play at Ober Ammergau.

By W. T. STEAD. 160 pp., with 100 Illustrations. Price 2*s.* 6*d.; Cloth; Gilt. Post Free* 2*s.* 9*d.*

This handsomely illustrated volume contains the whole of the Passion Play as it was played in Ober Ammergau in 1890, both in German and in English. The English version is printed in parallel columns to the German, but while all the words of the drama are literally translated, the story is woven into a consecutive narrative, which can be read as if it were a connected story. Every winter the exhibition of lantern slides illustrating the Passion Play is extending, and this book is indispensable to all those who would lecture or speak of the play.

PREFACE.

PITY the troubles of a poor Indexer! Given the following conundrum, how many persons are there who would be able to solve it? How should an article entitled "The Elephant in Politics," which appeared in one of the reviews last year, be entered in the Index? The Elephant in Politics? Under "Elephant," under "Politics," under "Natural History," or how? The article in question was really a more or less satirical criticism of the career of Sir William Harcourt. Another conundrum, even more difficult to solve, is how to index "The Emperor's New Clothes!" This article really referred to the Irish land question. These two instances illustrate in a vivid fashion the kind of problems which Miss Hetherington and her staff, to whose ingenuity and industry we owe this "Annual Index to Periodical Literature," have continually to solve. It is no use to index articles merely by their titles. Every article needs to be understood before it is indexed, if the indexer is not to be a mere mechanical rearranger of alphabetical sequences. An index of titles is indeed the least useful of all indexes, because people rarely remember the exact titles of articles.

In presenting the sixth "Annual Index" to the student, the statesman, and to the continually increasing and most important class of public librarians, I do so with cheerful confidence that the new volume, despite its necessarily increased price, will be welcomed more cordially than ever by a constantly widening circle of readers. For when the Index is once used, it soon becomes recognised as indispensable.

The periodical literature of the English-speaking world tends every year to become more and more a microcosmic reflection of the whole life and movement of that world. Daily papers are too voluminous to be indexed together in one index; nor, with the exception of the Times, do any of them attempt to index even their own news and articles. No single magazine, however, covers the whole ground of current events, but when we index over 170 monthly and quarterly periodicals, we do indeed get something approaching a vade mecum to the history of the year, not only in the realm of action, but in the still more important region of speculation and aspiration—the astral plane in which all things must first exist before they materialise into fact.

Of course, this Index makes no pretence at being absolutely exhaustive. Were it so, the reader would never be able to see the wood for the trees. Our indexers are the first embodiment of those dread sisters the Norns, who sit in judgment upon the writings of mortals. But they are the most lenient of their race, for they admit many an article to the immortality of indexed reference which finds no other admittance within the portals of the Temple of Fame. The author-index, however, is still somewhat ruthlessly repressed within narrow limits. If we had more demand for our Index, we could emblazon the names of more authors in its columns; as it is, we sacrifice the authors to their articles, believing that parental fondness will soften the pangs of immolation.

The curious in statistical matters, such a man, for instance, as Mr. Schooling, who contributes diagrammatical essays to the magazines, might from this volume construct an interesting table displaying the relative popularity of men and things. To intrinsic worth the comparative immensity of bubble in the magazines affords no guide, but it certainly indicates the extent to which the more conspicuous among our contemporaries are discussed in the magazines. Death, of course, brings the work of life to the memory of the living, and literary work finds more notice in literary periodicals than political achievements. Hence in this volume Robert Louis Stevenson occupies a prominent place, while Mr. Balfour, with his "Foundations of Belief," laid a broader foundation for magazine notoriety than by his political exploits.

Nor is it only in the rise and fall of individual reputations that the Index is useful as a mete-yard of history. How significant of many things of reaction, and of the ever-shifting phases of social evolution is the fact that the space devoted to "Labour" has shrunk and dwindled, while the entries under the leading topics of the day, the Armenian Question, for instance, have greatly increased. Even the Venezuelan Boundary Question had begun in 1895, and next year (1896) Africa will be found to have passed all bounds.

But these are general considerations. The real use of the Index lies in its particular application. Only those who have had to write an obituary, or work up a subject at a moment's notice, can adequately appreciate the services of such an Index as this. Even if we are entirely unable to refer to the articles indexed, their mere sequence and their titles afford invaluable help in suggesting forgotten facts, and in directing attention to sources of information that might otherwise have been overlooked. As one who probably more than any other profits by the labours of the Indexers, I feel it is but a simple act of duty to advise my brother scribes of the utility of this labour, and to make this public acknowledgment of exertions for which I have indeed great cause to be grateful.

So I commit our sixth volume to the public with a word of hearty commendation, which I am glad to know will be echoed by all to whom the "Annual Index" has come to be regarded as an indispensable adjunct to their library, and an invaluable clue through the labyrinth of contemporary periodical literature.

W. T. STEAD.

Midsummer, 1896.

INTRODUCTION.

YEAR by year it falls to my lot to chronicle the births, marriages, and deaths of the periodical literature of our time. In the last twelve months marriages have been few, but births and deaths are well up to the average. To begin with the deaths, Merry England, a Catholic monthly, succumbed in March, 1895. The Thinker, a theological magazine and review, ceased to think or to appear in December. The Twentieth Century, which was issued before due time, only put out three numbers—May, June, and August, 1895, after which this nineteenth century of ours knew it no more. In 1896 there are also several deaths to notice. The Minster, an ambitious illustrated magazine, which was started in January, 1895, went into liquidation in March, 1896. Last April Dr. Lunn discontinued his Review of the Churches, which had passed through various vicissitudes as a monthly and as a quarterly; and the last number of the Religious Review of Reviews which reached me was in January last. Note in passing that the Review of Reviews idea has not achieved much success apart from the original Review of Reviews and its American and Australasian offshoots. These appear to prosper amain, thriving more and more as years go by. Arrangements are being made for establishing a special printing office and bindery in Melbourne for the production in Australasia of our publications.

Perhaps the most notable new departure in periodical literature of the past eighteen months has been the application of the Review of Reviews principle to the literature of the world. The publication in penny weekly numbers of the masterpieces of the English poets, followed by the publication, also weekly, of the masterpieces of fiction—the latter condensed so as to bring the story within the compass of a penny publication—has opened the door to a series of penny publications which can hardly fail to extend enormously the area of the reading public. Mr. Newnes followed suit with his "Penny Library of Famous Books," which has attained a moderate degree of success. From the office of the Review of Reviews have been issued: (1), "Penny Poets," 48 numbers of which were issued weekly—the series is now continued monthly; (2), "Penny Popular Novels," of which 26 numbers have now been published; (3), "Political Pamphlets," appearing as occasion demands; (4), "Books for the Bairns," profusely illustrated, appearing monthly; and (5) "Penny Prose Classics," appearing monthly, the first number on July 1, 1896. The average sale of each of these may be taken at 100,000, although of "Æsop's Fables" and Macaulay's "Lays" 200,000 have been sold, and of Rider Haggard's "She" 450 000 copies have been disposed of.

Of the births of periodicals proper, the most ambitious new publication in 1896 is Mr. Fisher Unwin's Cosmopolis, a review appearing monthly at 2s. 6d. Its speciality is that it is an Anglo-French and German magazine, with English, French, and German editors and staff of contributors. Each linguistic section is quite distinct, and the unity of the review is secured by the thread of the bookbinder. The popular illustrated medley of pictures and fiction and light miscellaneous reading has received two recruits in the Windsor, which appeared in January, 1895, and in Pearson's Magazine, which came out in January, 1896. The Badminton, a country house monthly, illustrated, which issued its first number in August, 1895, was followed closely by the Country House, appealing to the same class of readers, in October, 1895. Chapman's Magazine of Fiction started in May, 1895, with a brilliant staff, but the result seems to prove that fiction unadulterated by miscellanies and pictures cannot compete successfully with periodicals which are merely later improvements on the magazines of our childhood. The Englishwoman, which appeared in March, 1895, marks an attempt by the daughter of a distinguished editor to achieve success in the profession in which she was cradled. To-Morrow, started in January, 1896, as a fourpenny mid-monthly, raises its price in July, and intends to come out on the 1st of the month.

Two or three other new magazines remain to be mentioned. Mr. J. P. Yeatman has started the Judicature Quarterly Review "to advocate the abolition of those Clauses of the Judicature Acts which have brought about the deplorable condition of our Common Law procedure." The Preparatory Schools Review, which was started in July, 1895, as the organ of the Association of Headmasters of Preparatory Schools, is issued three times a year. In January, 1895, we had the first number of S. Luke's, a Catholic magazine, and in May, 1895, Lady Amabel Kerr started the Catholic Magazine, and incorporated the Marygold with it. In July, 1895, the Ampleforth Journal appeared as the magazine of Ampleforth (Catholic) College, near York. The Commonwealth, a threepenny social magazine edited by Canon Scott Holland, is one of the most interesting of the smaller magazines. It was started in January, 1896. Another small illustrated monthly is the Crown, the first number of which appeared in March, 1896.

In Science it may be noted that Knowledge has reverted to the original sub-title—"An illustrated magazine of science, literature and art"—which it bore when Mr. Proctor founded it fifteen years ago to imply a somewhat extended area of work. Science Gossip, which had fallen into arrears, decided not to issue the March, April, and May (1896) numbers, and the new volume was made to begin in June. There is no number of the Medical Magazine to hand since March last; possibly it has been discontinued.

In Art, the chief change in 1895 was the enlargement of the Studio. The Magazine of Art and the Art Journal continue as good as before, but the Art Journal has made the "Art Annuals" an important feature. The Artist, established in 1880, has become an interesting monthly of applied art. Since Home and Country was incorporated with the Monthly Illustrator (formerly Quarterly Illustrator), this magazine has deteriorated. In February, 1896, the first number of Architecture appeared. It is a very interesting illustrated monthly, published at 1s. nett. The Quarto, though distinctly an art publication, is referred to among the quarterlies. In the music magazines there are several changes to chronicle. The Strand Musical Magazine, which was started in January, 1895, has a rival in Melody, started in March of the present year. The Meister disappeared with 1895; the New Quarterly Musical Review disappeared in May, 1896; the Scottish Musical Monthly was incorporated with the Scottish Musical Review in 1896; and the Church Musician became the Musical Observer in January, 1896.

In Archæology, we note first the incorporation of the Illustrated Archæologist with the quarterly Reliquary in 1895. The Antiquary continues as before. Since 1892, the County of Essex has had its review in the shape of the Essex Review; Bye-Gones has represented Wales for some time; and there have been several other county magazines. Last year the Berks, Bucks, and Oxon Archæological Journal, and the Middlesex and Hertfordshire Notes and Queries, both quarterlies, were started. In 1896 the Kent Magazine has been added. Vectis hails from the Isle of Wight. Scots Lore, started in January, 1895, was discontinued with the seventh number. Dorset Records has also been discontinued.

In the United States an American edition of the London Bookman was started in February, 1895. The Metaphysical Magazine, an American monthly of occult, philosophic, and scientific research, was started in January, 1895. The quarterly American Journal of Sociology made its first appearance in July, 1895; and the American Historical Review, also a quarterly, came out in October, 1895.

The American Our Day was started in 1885. In January, 1895, the Altruistic Review, which had been started the previous year by Mr. H. A. Cuppy, was incorporated with it, and in May, 1895, Mr. Cuppy took over the magazine himself from Dr. Jos. Cook. In January, 1896, the double name Our Day and Altruistic Review became Altruistic Review only, and in February the name was again changed to Pulpit Herald and Altruistic Review. Meanwhile another Our Day has been started (about February, 1896) by Mr. F. L. Chapman, at Chicago, as a successor or continuation of Dr. Jos. Cook's Our Day. The American Journal of Politics became the American Magazine of Civics in January, 1895.

The Calcutta Review and the Indian Church Quarterly are well-known Indian reviews, but in May, 1895, the Madras Review, a quarterly, was added to the periodicals devoted to the discussion of Indian affairs.

Outside the magazines proper there have sprung up a more or less nondescript class of periodicals, of which the Yellow Book may be regarded as the pioneer. The Yellow Book paled somewhat of its glare after the Oscar Wilde case, with the result that the Savoy was started in January, 1896, to afford a refuge to Mr. Aubrey Beardsley and his decadent comrades. After the second number, the Savoy has announced that the magazine will be issued in monthly form, at 2s. nett, instead of the quarterly form, at 2s. 6d. nett. As an antidote to Beardsleyism we have the Evergreen, which issued spring and autumn numbers in 1895, and will issue summer and winter numbers in 1896. It is fearfully and wonderfully bound, and the contents are edited with the object of heralding the renascence of art and literature. In April, 1896, a much more artistic quarterly in the shape of the Quarto made its appearance; in it the work of the students of the Slade Art School has prominence.

There has been a considerable shifting of editorial responsibility in the last twelve months. One of the most famous of English magazines, the Cornhill, imperishably associated with the name of Thackeray, has lost the services of Mr. James Payn, and will in future be edited by Mr. J. St. Loe Strachey, a young man who has done good work on the Spectator. Another famous old periodical, the Westminster Review, lost its editor, Dr. Chapman, in December, 1894. The Edinburgh Review, once the most illustrious of all periodicals printed in the English language, lost its editor when death carried off Henry Reeve in October, 1895. George Bentley's death in June, 1895, vacated the editorial chair of Temple Bar. Mr. Benj. Waugh has finally forsaken the Sunday Magazine in order to devote his attention to the tortured children of modern England. His place is taken by Mr. William Canton. Mr. W. H. Page has left the Forum. Mr. J. M. Robertson handed over the Free Review to Mr. G. Astor Singer in 1895; and Capt. Garbett, in February, 1896, succeeded Capt. Maude as editor of the Journal of the Royal United Service Institution.

There have been many changes in prices since our last "Annual Index" was issued. In the United States periodicals are cheaper; in the United Kingdom they are dearer. The Cosmopolitan and McClure's magazines are both issued under cost price at 10 cents per month, or a dollar per annum. But the English price of the Cosmopolitan remains 7½d. The Arena has tumbled from 50 to 25 cents; the American Catholic Quarterly from five to four dollars per annum; the Engineering Magazine from 35 to 30 cents. The only American magazine which has raised its price is the Forum. It is however, only raised in England. It used to be sold at 2s. 6d. here; then it was reduced to 25 cents in New York, and was labelled 1s. 3d. in London. It is now charged 1s. 6d. in London, but remains 25 cents across the water.

In England, Borderland has improved its value and its circulation by raising the price from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. Cornhill is to be 1s. instead of sixpence. The Idler, the Studio, and the Argosy have all become shilling magazines, while the Pall Mall has gone up to eighteenpence, the Journal of the Royal United Service Institution to 2s., and the Jewish Quarterly to 3s. 6d. Science Gossip has gone up to 6d., but the Humanitarian and the Antiquary alone of English magazines have reduced their price, and are now to be had at 6d. instead of 1s. each.

In the Foreign magazines there are few developments to chronicle. The Monde Moderne was started in 1895; the Revue Encyclopédique, started as a fortnightly, became a weekly in 1896; and the Revue des Revues has become practically an independent review.

W.T.S.

SOME OPINIONS OF THE ANNUAL INDEX.

The Times says:—"The Annual Index is really what it professes to be, a means of ready reference to all the important matter in current periodical literature."

The Daily News says:—"Each year's Index gives us access to a whole library in almost every department of human knowledge and of human inquiry and interest."

The Daily Chronicle says:—"No student of contemporary affairs can afford to be without this invaluable and painstaking work."

The Westminster Gazette says:—"The work has already achieved a reputation. For journalists, librarians, students, and the great unnamed host interested in current periodical literature, the Index is of the utmost value."

The Pall Mall Gazette says:—"The work is done well. The references are only matched in copiousness by the cross-references, which are as exhaustive as they can be."

The Birmingham Daily Post says:—"The work is literally crowded with masses of facts and figures, and is the result of unrivalled labour and infinite care in detail. As an Index of periodicals it is unrivalled and invaluable."

The Sheffield Independent says:—"This quarto volume is a monument of patient and methodical work. No public library should be without it, and no editor's library. Every year will add to its value."

The Literary World says:—"The Index deserves a strong recommendation for the utility and assistance it is able to give to all who have to deal with current periodical literature. The arrangement of the entries is systematic and good, and the tests we have been able to apply show accuracy and fulness."

The Speaker says:—"It has been compiled with skill, judgment, and knowledge, and it deserves to rank high amongst works of ready reference."

The Methodist Times says:—"No library can possibly afford to be without this annual volume—the most useful reference book issued from the Press; no journalist can pretend he has any library unless he boasts the possession of this Index; to the politician it is absolutely indispensable."

Natural Science says:—"Practically everything that is of any use to anybody is catalogued. No library can possibly afford to do without this patiently and industriously compiled volume, and the individual who has once bought a copy will purchase all the rest."

The London Quarterly says:—"The student, the journalist, the statesman, and the general reader will find the Index a great help in pursuing any special line of reading in which they may be interested."

The English Historical Review says:—"It is the subject classification which gives the book its chief value; for the compiler has gone behind the often vague titles of articles and indicated briefly their real purport."

Mr. ARTHUR W. HUTTON, librarian at the National Liberal Club says:—"I find the Index of great value on account of its careful subject classification."

The Journal of the Royal Colonial Institute says:—"As a work of reference this Index cannot be too highly praised. . . . It can only be described as a bibliography of periodical literature."

The Geographical Journal says:—"To judge by the treatment of articles from the Geographical Journal, the work is done with care and discrimination."

Mr. A. SILVA WHITE writes:—"Having once used the Index and tested its value, I regard it as an indispensable aid to a busy man of letters and as an up-to-date supplement to Poole."

The Magazine of Art says:—"The Index to Periodical Literature is in all respects the most complete and admirable work of its kind that has ever been published."

Explanation.

The periodicals (quarterlies and monthlies) are indexed from January to December, 1895, irrespective of volumes. As yet no weeklies are included in the scheme.

In addition to the abbreviations of the titles of magazines, note that the number of the volume, the month, and the page of the magazine in which each article will be found are given, while the figures in parentheses refer to the volume, month, and page of the Review of Reviews (London edition) where the article is summarized or otherwise noticed. In case of a series of articles on one subject in one magazine, the name of the magazine is not repeated with each reference, only the month and the page, and the number of the volume where necessary.

Thus A, XI. Feb, 338 (XI. Mar, 254) would read Arena, Vol. XI., February, page 338, with a notice in the Review of Reviews (London edition), Vol. XI., March, page 254. Similarly, Nat R, XXV. Apr, 183 (XI. Apr, 356), May, 351 (XI. May, 446), would mean National Review, Vol. XXV., April, page 183, with a notice in the Review of Reviews (London edition), Vol. XI., April, page 356; National Review again, same Volume, May, page 351, with another notice in the Review of Reviews (London edition), Vol. XI., May, page 446.

(Map) means that the article is accompanied by a map, and (ill.) that it is illustrated.

Articles are classified and arranged under sub-headings as much as possible, and authors' names, when available, are given. In addition, many authors will find their articles tabulated under their names; unfortunately, owing to the exigencies of space, this has not been possible in every instance. Articles with vague titles are indexed under some word in the title with an explanatory sub-title added, or a cross-reference is given to show under which heading the article will be found. Occasionally an article appears simultaneously in an English and in an American review, in which case "same article" is stated. Poems are indexed under the authors' names; the same holds good with novelists and most other writers whose books are reviewed in the periodicals.

Critical and biographical notices of artists are given under the names of the artists, of musicians under the musicians' names, etc. A list of artists noticed will be found under the heading "Art"; musicians and composers under "Music"; dramatists, playwrights, and actors under "Theatres and the Drama"; novelists under "Fiction"; etc., etc. Dates of births and deaths where readily obtainable have been inserted with the names of persons now dead; but with kings, emperors, etc., the dates of their reigns have been preferred. Dates of important events have also been added. Serials and short stories are not indexed, but the chief poems are given.
